Why Patience Pays?

How Continuing SIPs in Crisis May Reward You

In investing, long-term success generally comes from staying focused and trusting the process rather than reacting to short term movements.

While market volatility can feel unsettling, it also could present opportunities for patient investors. Over time, those who stay invested and continue their SIPs are likely to benefit the most, as compounding quietly does the heavy lifting.

One Journey, Different Outcomes!

Let's consider the investment journey of two investors, Mr.A and Mr.B. Both started investing in the HDFC Flexi Cap Fund at the same time via an SIP of Rs.10,000.

Let's assume that both investors begin their SIPs in the same year as the market crisis and continue investing for a total period of five years. However, during this time, Mr. B temporarily stops his SIP investments for six months when the markets hit their bottom, while Mr.A continues investing without interruption.

Scenario 1

Dot-Com Effect along with the 9/11 Attack

SIP Start Date: 01 Jan 2001

When markets crashed due to the sustained effect of the dot-com crisis coupled with the September 2001 attacks, panic set in.

Mr. B decided to pause his SIP for six months

While Mr. A continued investing without interruption.

	A	B
SIP Start Date	01-Jan-01	01-Jan-01
SIP Pause	No	Yes
Pause Period	---	6 months
Amount (in ₹) Invested till 1st Dec, 2005	6,00,000	5,40,000
Period Of Investment	5 Years
Market Value (in ₹) as on 31st Dec, 2005	22,23,092	18,64,570
Difference (in ₹)		3,58,522

Scenario 2 Global Financial Crisis

SIP Start Date: 01 Jan 2008

Fast forward a few years. Another global crisis strikes. This time it is the 2008 Global Financial Crisis. Fear is everywhere again.

SIP Start Date	01-Jan-08	01-Jan-08
SIP Pause	No	Yes
Pause Period	---	6 months
Amount (in ₹) Invested till 1st Dec, 2012	6,00,000	5,40,000
Period Of Investment	5 Years
Market Value (in ₹) as on 31st Dec, 2012	8,76,449	7,09,969
Difference (in ₹)		1,66,479

Scenario 3 Covid Pandemic

SIP Start Date: 01 Jan 2020

The Covid crisis was sudden, unprecedented, and emotionally draining. Once again, uncertainty ruled the markets.

	A	B
SIP Start Date	01-Jan-20	01-Jan-20
SIP Pause	No	Yes
Pause Period	---	6 months
Amount (in ₹) Invested till 1st Dec, 2024	6,00,000	5,40,000
Period Of Investment	5 Years
Market Value (in ₹) as on 31st Dec, 2024	11,77,852	9,64,533
Difference (in ₹)		2,13,319

Under each scenario, Mr.B paused his SIPs when the markets hit their lowest in the respective investment periods. He missed out on one of the key advantages of SIP, that is buying more units when the markets are down.

Across all three crises, Mr. B invested less, but more importantly, he missed buying at lower prices, which reduced his long-term wealth as compared to Mr. A. Avoiding panic and staying patient is the key when the markets are going through a tough time. It is about time in the market and not timing the market.

Final Thoughts!

In the end, long-term investing success is rarely about timing the market, it is about staying the course when it feels the hardest. Even in the current episode of market fall, we do not know where the market will bottom out. Markets will always go through cycles of fear and recovery, but those who remain patient and consistent are the ones who truly could benefit from compounding. Mr. A's journey in all 3 scenarios shows us that discipline during uncertainty can turn volatility into opportunity, while Mr.B's experience highlights the cost of letting emotions drive decisions. As investors, the lesson is simple yet meaningful: stay invested, stay patient, and let time do the heavy lifting.
